Art Libraries Discovery Experiment

Books, Journals, and more ...

For Selected Art Libraries  For All WorldCat Contributors

By ‘Books, Journals, and more ...’ we mean cataloging records representing books, serials, maps, sound recordings, scores, visual materials, and other items cataloged and added to the WorldCat database. Records describing full text materials, article citations, sales catalogs, and other kinds of library materials can be found in other search results in the right-hand sidebar.

In this experiment we're testing whether a selected set of Art Libraries, designated by an OCLC Symbol in WorldCat, can be used as a virtual art library catalog system. Searches in this view are limited to the holdings of this initial set of art libraries:

The Articles view shows records for articles available through the WorldCat.org website. These article citation records are supplied to WorldCat.org by a number of different sources: OCLC's ArticleFirst database, British Library Serials, Elsevier, MEDLINE/PubMed, and others, and made available to WorldCat.org users by agreement with the record suppliers.

In this view we'll be testing ways by which a user can be connected to a system that will be able to negotiate access to the articles, in print or electronic form, on their behalf.
