Description of Curated Stacks?
Curated Stacks

@jeluedke
A New Way to Look at Research

Next time you're in Paley Library, have a look at the Curated Stacks display located on the main floor near the New Books. Curated Stacks is a project that allows library patrons to show off their research in a creative and nontraditional format. The sources on display are curated and installed by patrons who have utilized materials from the Temple Libraries' collections for a research article, course assignment, exhibition, or multimedia project.

The current Curated Stacks is provided by Phoebe Bachman, BFA Sculpture major at Tyler.
Library resources are revealed in new Curated Stacks exhibit at Temple

The next time you visit Temple’s Paley Library, be sure to stop by the Curated Stacks — a new library feature that allows patrons to display their research sources and methods in a creative and nontraditional format.

Located on the main floor near the New Books section, the exhibit is curated and

Sculpture major gets research grant

Phoebe Bachman has a research-based exhibit in Paley Library on activist female artists.

by Alexa Bricker  |  10 September 2013
REFLECTIONS ON THE PROJECT
REFLECTIONS ON THE PROJECT
ACCOUNTABILITY
REFLECTIONS ON THE PROJECT

ACCOUNTABILITY

Library
Event

@jeluedke
THE END